

Priest Sex Abuse Scandal Spreading to Europe

The sex abuse scandal that has so far cost the U.S. Roman Catholic church over two billion dollars, is now spreading to Europe and elsewhere. Victims have surfaced in Ireland, Italy, and Pope Benedict's home archdiocese in Germany.

As in the U.S., allegations of cover up abound with some paper trails leading even to Benedict when he was head of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. Instead of reporting to police, they would deal with it by internal, secret, tribunals or simply reassign the offending priest to another parish.

Two particularly disturbing cases involved students at deaf schools run by the church. The abuse took place over decades with hundreds of victims. Only recently have former students come forward to reveal the extent of the problem.

Protesters in London demonstrate against Pope Benedict's handling of sex abuse cases. Before becoming pope, he refused to defrock a priest in Wisconsin who was accused of molesting 200 boys in a deaf school.

Doubt in the Bible Behind Cultural Decay

For Bible believers who are looking for a reason for the current cultural crisis, they need look no further than the modern Bible versions.

A recent study indicates that there is a growing number of people who call themselves Christians yet don't really believe the Bible to be God's Word. News makers have labeled them

"Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?" Galatians 4:16

Would Muhammad Approve Blowing Up an Airliner?

The Muslim who attempted to blow up an airliner last Christmas, illustrates the religious nature of the “terror war.”

The bomber, Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab, was trained and assisted in his mission by a spiritual leader, the Muslim Cleric Anwar al-Awlaki.

Today, the face of war has changed from battlefield confrontations with “enemy combatants” wearing clearly marked uniforms, to anonymous, random attacks of what we now call “terrorism.”

Past wars always had a religious overtone. Early America fought to escape religious persecution. Later conflicts were mostly defending the freedom to worship as we wish. This time, it is only different in method.

However, Western World leaders, hung up on being tolerant to all beliefs, deny that Islam’s violence is central to their religion, and claim that it is only practiced by a small number of “radicals.” Spiritually, Islam is well positioned to execute this new kind of “war.”

Traditional war has “rules of engagement” that attempt to protect the innocent. In Islam, there are no “innocents,” only believers or “disbelievers.”

Believers are obligated by Allah to execute disbelievers if they refuse to convert (Sura 8:12). Slavery is proposed as a middle ground but not a frequent option.

So we see that the no-man’s-land between Islam and its enemies is not a territory, but a belief. Therefore, it is free to attack a “disbeliever” anywhere on earth using any available subterfuge.

So, we can’t just believe what we wish about Islam. We must look at what the Qur’an teaches and how its founder, Muhammad, carried out these teachings.

the “Christian left,” or “progressives.” Research indicates that they are very short on beliefs that match the biblical doctrines. Over 82 percent of those who identified themselves as conservative or the “Christian right” opposed same-sex marriage; 59 percent of the progressives were in favor of it.

While the conservative Christians believe that the cause of America’s problems is moral decay, progressive Christians consider poverty and discrimination to be the causes.

Sixty-seven percent of conservatives agreed that: “If enough people were brought to Christ, social ills would take care of themselves.” Only 15 percent disagreed. Progressives were almost exactly opposite with 61 percent disagreeing and only 13 percent agreeing. The heart of the matter came out in their views on the Bible.

Eighty-four percent of conservatives and only 22 percent of progressives viewed the Bible as the “Word of God.” Twenty-one percent of progressives viewed the Bible as simply “one important source of wisdom,” and 36 percent stated that it only “contains” the Words of God.

Linguist David W. Daniels, author of Look What’s Missing and several other books on Bible versions, sees a direct connection between the modern versions and this loss of faith in the Bible.

For instance, he was amazed to find that the very doctrines that are being systematically removed from the modern Bibles are the same ones progressives are ignoring. For example, “sodomites” no

Mary Tesmer Is An Excited Lady

Several months ago, Mary Tesmer began attending Abundant Life Church in Putnamville, near Indianapolis, Indiana.

There she met Dale Detro and learned of the tract rack ministry he was using to saturate their community with the gospel. About five years ago, Detro, who was retired, had a burden of reaching everyone in his small town with the gospel. Finally, he hit on the idea of planting "FREE—TAKE ONE" displays of the tracts in local businesses.

He bought some small card racks at Walmart and loaded them with tracts. He found half a dozen businesses who let him set them near their checkout counter. When he returned every week to refill them, they were usually empty. Store owners commented how popular they were with the customers.

Mary immediately caught the vision on a ride-along with Dale and his wife, Sue, to reload the racks: "During that time, God spoke to my heart and I had a burning desire to work in the ministry. That very day God gave me four businesses. Every week I went into new towns, setting up several tract racks in stores and restaurants," she says.

Almost Everyone in Town has Read a Chick Tract

Today, they service over 50 racks every week. Detro says that he seldom meets anyone in the community who does not know about the tracts, and thus the gospel. He has largely succeeded in fulfilling his vision, but the tracts keep disappearing from the racks.

Mary was not satisfied to just service the racks. "The Lord gave me a burden for the men and women in the local jails and prisons," she says. So, she contacted the chaplains and all expressed an interest. After the necessary paperwork, she was approved to place two racks in the first prison. The inmates devoured them. Soon the chaplain was asking for more. Mary contacted other chaplains, who welcomed her idea. Now, they are supplying thousands of tracts to four local facilities. Learning that many of the inmates were black or Hispanic, they began ordering tracts drawn with black characters and others in Spanish.

Chick Tracts Bring Joy to Inmates

One chaplain wrote Mary: "The tracts have really been a joy for our offenders. They are colorful and inviting and carry an amazingly big message. It's fun to watch them when the new ones are put out and to listen to them as they discuss some of the issues presented."

Mary's excitement began to spill over to other churches. Other pastors have asked her about the tract ministry and some began to devote part of their evangelism budgets to support the ministry.

Mary is not sure just how far this is going to go. She is now being asked to share her vision at local pastor's conferences. Some have caught the vision and are either supporting her by supplying more tracts or starting to set up the racks in their communities.

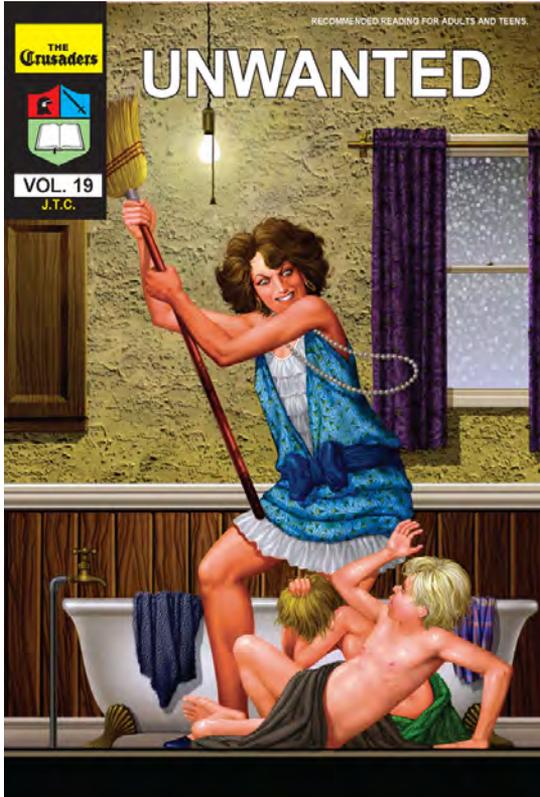

300,000 Tracts Distributed

In the five years that Detro, and now, Tesmer have been sowing the seed, they have distributed over 300,000 tracts. From the local outreach, their vision expanded and many thousands have been purchased for missionaries overseas. Spanish churches in the area have also been supplied.

Their pastor, Jerry Campbell, is thrilled to know that the gospel has been "preached" to almost everyone in the community by reading at least one of the tracts.

If you would like to know more about establishing such a ministry in your community, you can contact Dale Detro at 765-653-5053 or Mary Tesmer at 765-720-9585. The counter-top racks are now available from Chick Publications and hold 60 to 120 tracts. More information and a sample can be seen at www.chick.com/catalog/promotionals/smct_rack.asp.

Christian Fired for Expressing Biblical View of Homosexuality

An employee in Massachusetts has been fired from his job for expressing his Biblical opinion about homosexuality.

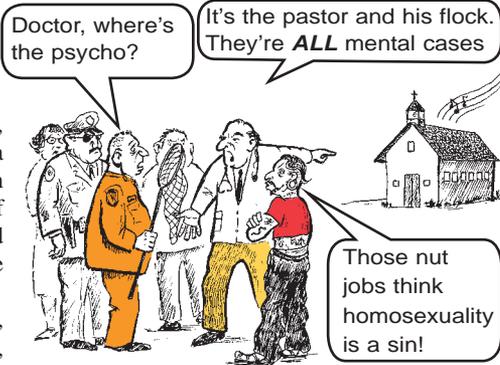

According to OneNewsNow.com, Peter Vadala was employed at a Brookstone store in Boston's Logan Airport. The female manager of another Brookstone store announced to Vadala that she was going to be married to another woman.

Vadala did not comment at first, but after she told him several times, he expressed his Christian opinion that homosexual conduct was wrong.

In a short time, he received a termination notice from the chain's human resources department. The stated reasons were that he engaged in "harassment," and his comments were "inappropriate and unprofessional."

Not only has Massachusetts made same-sex marriage legal, but state anti-discrimination laws provide special protection for homosexuals. This has resulted in silencing any opposition. "Basically, if you work for any company in Massachusetts, they can fire you for expressing your beliefs as a Christian," says Vadala.

Christian leaders have been warning us that the passage of same-sex marriage laws and special protections for homosexuals would result in silencing anyone who voices a Biblical view about it. Several states have installed these laws over the objections of a majority of their citizens. The citizens of thirty-one states have voted to restrict marriage to one man and one woman. In California and Maine, where legislatures and courts have installed same-sex marriage, the citizens have risen up and voted it down.

But they have paid a price. In California, homosexual thugs disrupted businesses and churches who gave money to defeat same-sex marriage. By law, the name and address of every donor who contributed more than $100 to the campaign to defeat same sex marriage had to be publicly listed by the Secretary of State.

Activists picked these up and went almost door-to-door harassing them. Some were laid off from their jobs because of the disruptions. Court suits are being filed in some states to keep donor's names from being exposed.

Vadala's experience must teach us the hazards to Christians and any others who object to making homosexuality legal and acceptable.

Sodomite activists will not stop their legal bulldozers until no one is allowed to object to their sin. We, as Christians, must stand against this perversion in every way we can. We must vote against the legalizing of homosexual behavior every chance we get.

But it is more important to alert the people who may not be Christians, but believe that it is somehow wrong.

We need to show them that our Creator made us man and woman and calls

Priest Sex Abuse Scandal...

The offending priests and lay workers are commonly referred to as “pedophiles,” but many of the victims were adolescent boys. Technically, a pedophile molests prepubescent children. But once the victim reaches puberty, it is no longer considered pedophilia.

In the sodomite community, the teenage male is the preferred target by seasoned homosexual men for two reasons. First, they are more likely to be free of AIDS or the 50 other sexually transmitted diseases circulating freely among homosexuals. Second, many homosexuals still prefer the partner to be somewhat girlish, not yet fully masculine.

This has led some observers to label the offending priests as homosexual, rather than pedophilic.

This fits with other evidence that the priesthood appears to be a magnet for homosexuals. Some writers have placed the percentage at near 40 percent of the active priests and seminarians.

The Vatican scrambles to deny that the mandate for celibacy of priests and nuns is partly to blame, pointing to other cases of “pedophiles” in Protestant churches.

But, popery ignores the Bible’s admonition about spiritual leaders being married and proven capable of managing their families before being allowed to lead the church. Moreover, “celibacy” and “chastity” are not viewed as the same by the pope. We assume that they both mean no sex outside of marriage. Technically, celibacy only means not to marry, while chastity refrains from all sexual activity.

The priest’s vow is celibacy (no marriage) not chastity (no sex.) Where Roman Catholicism dominates the culture, the people generally turn a blind eye to the lack of chastity in their celibate priests. Part of what turned Charles Chiniquy against popery was the lack of purity in his fellow priests. In his autobiographical book, 50 Years in the Church of Rome, he describes their drunken licentiousness.

In another book, The Priest, the Woman and the Confessional, Chiniquy details the intense, sexualized, interrogation that some priests use in probing wives and daughters about their sexual behavior and fantasies.

This was supposed to uncover hidden sexual sins so that they could be confessed and absolved and not damn the person to hell. Chiniquy considered some parts of his description so obscene that he only printed it in Latin. While Roman Catholicism poses as “just another denomination,” its true purpose is clear: spiritual bondage through a counterfeit “church.”

Soul winners, we need to help bring each precious soul who is caught in this web of spiritual deceit to the Truth that will set him free.

Besides these two Chiniquy books, Chick Publications has a variety of tracts, books and DVDs to help you witness to Roman Catholics.

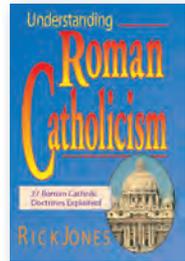

They pose as our brothers and sisters in Christ but this harlot church is soundly condemned in Revelation 17 and 18. We must help them “come out” to freedom in Christ. (See Rev. 18:4.)

Pressure on Israel Rising over Jerusalem

Pressure is rising on Israel to give up part of Jerusalem. Possession of Jerusalem has always been at the heart of the whole Middle East conflict. The Old Testament prophet, Zechariah, prophesied that the time would come when "...all the earth would be gathered against it." (See chapters 12 and 14.)

Some world leaders have even proposed that Israel just give up on trying to live in Palestine and go live somewhere else on planet earth.

For centuries, the Vatican has taught that God is done with Israel because they rejected their Messiah and now the "Christian" church is the "people of God." Others have picked up on this, even claiming that God has a separate plan of salvation for the Jews, and that we don't need to even witness to them.

However, it is obvious that God is not finished with the Jews. Too many Bible prophecies have been fulfilled over the centuries, including their continued existence and their return to the land that He had promised to them forever. One of these is the promise by God to bless those who bless Israel and curse those who curse them.

There is a distinct pattern over the centuries of devastation and decline of nations who have offended God by mistreating the Jews. The worldwide British Empire is a hollow shell of its former glory. Germany and much of the rest of Europe suffered a generation of horror by following Hitler in trying to wipe out the Jews.

Thus, the recent treatment of Israel by the present U.S. administration does not bode well for America.

Israel is increasingly isolated from the rest of the world, which is weary of the disruption caused by this little shrimp of a state. Europe enjoys Israel as a trading partner, but is not willing to rise to her defense. The Muslim world wants Israel wiped off the map so they can freely worship their moon god on the temple mount. The rest of Asia, Africa and Latin America are preoccupied with their own problems with militant Islam or trying to feed their exploding populations.

So far, the only real friend of Israel has been the U.S. But that is changing under a less sympathetic U.S. administration. Much effort at "shuttle diplomacy" has been expended recently to "restart the peace plan" between Israel and the "Palestinians."

The Palestinian leaders have stated repeatedly that the only way to peace is for Israel to give up, get out and vacate Jerusalem. The present Israeli leadership has also stood by their statement that Jerusalem is "not negotiable."

Frustrated negotiators see this impasse, but insist that peace plan talks resume with the goal of a "two-state" solution. Since this "solution" is apparently not on God's agenda, this puts opponents of Israel in jeopardy with the Almighty, Himself.

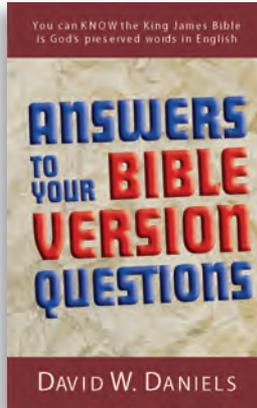

Does the U.S. believe that we are any different than other nations who have "cursed" Israel?

As the tract Somebody Angry? points out, we need to look and see if recent "natural disasters" might just be a symptom of God's displeasure. Almost simultaneous with our increased pressure on Israel, we have had record blizzards and floods.

Agriculture scientists are predicting a massive grasshopper plague covering some 48 million acres in the Wyoming-South Dakota area this summer. Maybe we need to refer to the plagues on the Pharaoh in Egypt to see what might be coming next. Like Goliath learned, we should be very careful in our dealings with David's God.

And soul winners, we need to make sure everyone gets this message by giving away as many Somebody Angry? as we can.

- ... Did Peter quote the Septuagint?
- ... Why does the KJV italicize some words?
- ... Did the King James change "Passover" to Easter" in Acts 12:4?
- ... Who were the translators of the KJV?
- ... Does "replenish" mean "repopulate" a world before ours in Genesis 1:28?
- ... Has the King James Bible been changed between 1611 and today?
- ... What's wrong with other versions?
- ... What's wrong with KJV look-a likes?
- ... Why did the KJV translators translate almah as "virgin" in Isaiah 7:14?

love Chick Tracts

A friend of mine who is in prison in Florida read the book One Thing You Can't Do In Heaven by Mark Cahill. He was so excited. He told me that he gives a tract to one guy and tells him, "Hey do me a favor, when you're done, give the tract to another guy and tell that guy to come see me, and they do! They love those tracts." C.J., FL

If you could send me some of the magazines you have I would really appreciate it. A homie that I was locked up with had a few of them. I began reading them and could not put them down. I have read King of Kings, Scarface and The Broken Cross but would like to read all of them. A.M., CA

I love the cartoons. Could you please send me the Holy Joe tracts instead of the This Was Your Life tract when you send the Catalog. I'm the only Christian on my block and the other inmates make fun of me and sometimes put me down for what I believe in. (Jesus Christ as my Savior).

I remember the Holy Joe tract, where he went through the same thing I am going through, when he was in the Army. I could use me a lift me up by reading Holy Joe again. M.D., MA longer appears in modern versions, replaced by "shrine or temple prostitutes" or even "immoral persons." Specific verses regarding the deity of Christ, like 1 Timothy 3: 16, have taken away the fact that Christ is God become man. It is no coincidence that people have started disbelieving in the Trinity after the removal of crucial words from 1 John 5:7.

In Look What's Missing, Daniels details over 250 scripture verses in 40 modern Bible versions where words, phrases or whole verses are omitted.

He draws comparisons that show that some versions even contradict each other. He shows how footnotes and bracketed verses only raise more doubt in the reader. If the translators couldn't decide what God really wanted to say, how is the reader going to figure out what is truth?

In Matthew 24:35, Jesus promised His words would remain even if heaven and earth passed away. Daniels asks, "If Jesus made this promise, then where should we look to find them?" So-called "textual scholars" try to tell us that only the original manuscripts were perfect.

If so, then Jesus did not keep His word. If we are not sure we have God's preserved words, then we can pick and choose what we like from the flawed copies of the Bible. From that we get the "Christian left," who believe our salvation is in the government, not in God.

Daniels finishes by pointing the reader to the one version that comes from over 5,000 manuscripts that substantially agree and were faithfully copied and translated. "Jesus did keep His promise," says Daniels. "Honest research points to the King James Bible as God's preserved words for the English speaking world."

One day while passing out tracts in Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, I went up a main street about a mile and returned on the other side passing out Chick tracts. What a joy it was to look across the street and see so many people young and old standing on the street corners, sitting on their porches and on the curbs, all diligently reading the tracts. Yes, Chick tracts do get read. Keep up the good work.

I want to tell you all these tracts are ANOINTED. When I was very young (in High School) I remember I read a tract called, This Was Your Life. All throughout my development into adulthood that tract kept convicting me. Eventually, I became born-again and received Jesus as my Lord and Saviour. I am now an evangelist.

My granddaughter was so eager to read when she was 7. On a visit, she discovered Chick tracts on my bookshelf and asked if she could have some.

I gratefully told her "Yes." Not until a few months later when I was visiting my daughter did I hear about the fruits.

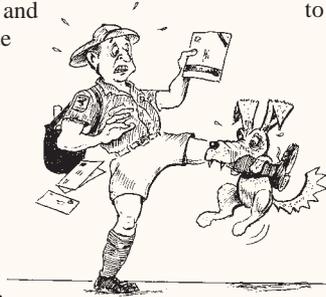

She used one of the tracts to lead her 8 year old neighbor to the Lord.

She takes them with her when she goes shopping with her mom and offers them to the cashiers and workers there.

My daughter tells me no one can hardly refuse a tract from a sweet, young, earnest girl like her. I have enjoyed your Should Adultery be a Crime?

This legal question is being brought up in a number of state legislatures. In New Hampshire, a group of lawmakers have introduced a bill to repeal a 200-year-old statute still on their law books. They could not find a recent case where someone had been prosecuted for adultery.

Like New Hampshire, about half of the states still have such laws on their books. They, also, largely ignore the subject except when it becomes a central issue in a divorce. Even then, criminal prosecution is not pursued.

"I just don't think the state should tell two consenting adults who they can sleep with," said one co-sponsor of the repeal bill. This was echoed by the U.S. Supreme Court in ruling on the constitutionality of the Texas sodomy law a few years ago. This theme has become popular as the culture increasingly turns a blind eye toward sin.

Part of the job of government is to "suppress evil." But most of us recognize that police cannot succeed at this if evil becomes so pervasive that not enough "good guys" can be found to do the police work. General corruption then takes over the culture and the government as we see in Mexico, Haiti and other struggling counties. It is sobering to see that today, our state and local governments review hundreds of applicants for police work to find just a handful who qualify.

Many of America's founding fathers wrote that the government they designed would fail without "virtue in the people." We are watching that virtue being challenged on every side.

Most TV programming and movies are built around plots that actually promote or at least make light or humor about sinful behavior. As Bible believers, our job is to promote virtue by calling people to righteousness. Otherwise, the government's efforts will be overwhelmed. This situation only indicates how far we have come from honoring the real law Source.

God does not mince words in the 7th commandment on this subject. And then in the story of David and Bathsheba, God gives all the sordid details of the consequences of their adultery:

There was shame on a king, an evil order to a trusty army general, the anguish of a loyal soldier when he discovered he was left to be killed by the enemy, a curse on David's family and nation, and the death of the child he fathered in his sin.

Several years ago, Chick Publications published a tract called The Royal Affair. Since then other tracts have replaced it and the tract was dropped from our line. As we watched the increasing disregard for this 7th commandment, we felt it was time to reintroduce it to remind people of God's view of this sin.

The growing tide of sin washing over our nation has Bible believers deeply concerned. We must find ways to speak against it. Poll takers tell us that up to 50 percent of adults in America will admit to at least one "affair."

Gospel tracts seeded into our communities are effective in making people stop and think about God and His concern for our sin.

No one, having read The Royal Affair, can plead ignorance of God's view about adultery which is the only opinion that really counts.

Some tracts are on subjects that make it difficult to hand to someone. However, if they are "planted" where they can be found, they will be read.

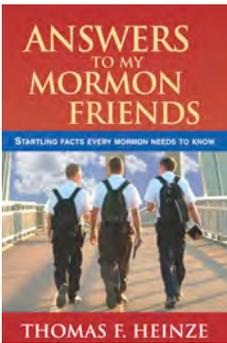

Soul winners tell us all the time that "Chick tracts get read." If the reader does not turn from his sin, that tract will stand as a witness against him at the day of judgment.

Muhammad...

Mohammad Ghazoli, in his book, Christ, Muhammad and I, describes the brutality of the raids by Muhammad's bandits on innocent commercial caravans and affluent cities. Beyond just robbery, he gleefully raped, beheaded, and hot-iron tortured "disbelievers" for entertainment. (See Chapter 4.)

In fact, Muhammad did not have a book to go by. He made up the Qur'an as he went. Whatever he wanted to do, Allah would "send down" passages that approved of his savagery and lust for beautiful women.

After he died, his followers cobbled together the Qur'an from bits and pieces, some written on bones, palm leaves, slabs of wood and bark and whatever they could remember.

Both Ghazoli's book and Who Is This Allah, by G.J.O. Moshay, describe in great detail why violence is required as long as "disbelievers" exist. Unlike most wars in recent history, the "war on terror" has a huge spiritual component.

It is not just another belief system but a mandate for the one billion Muslims to rid the world of all kafirs (infidels). Umar Farouk was simply using modern technology to obey the Qur'an. Muhammad would have been proud.

Any "moderate Muslim" who disbelieves this, is a traitor to Islam and subject to execution.

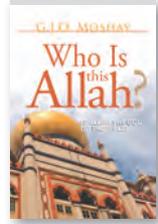

Some dare to state that Allah and Jehovah are the same God. Where do we see Jesus, the only begotten Son of Jehovah, approving such brutal and humiliating behavior?

As Ghazoli's book portrays, when the deceived Muslim discovers the loving God of the Bible, his heart leaps in response. He knows that Islam is contradictory to common sense and the yearning of the human spirit. But Muslim-dominated cultures know that if they allow the truth of Jehovah's anti-violence and unlimited love to intrude, their power is doomed.

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear ones in Christ,

For the unsaved, there must be deep-seated despair in their hearts, with states going bankrupt, delayed tax refunds, elections in turmoil, confusion and dread of what's coming. Movies showing the end of the world, worries about the Mayan calendar ending in 2012 —it can be described in a few words: "What a Mess!"

Satan is having a great time. After all, the world's system is his. He claimed this when he tempted the Lord Jesus. The devil showed him all the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them and said: "All these things will I give thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me," (Matthew 4:8-10). God gave Satan this position until Jesus returns and rules from Jerusalem.

Today, Satan has the world glued to their televisions, lost in sports, games, or watching everyone arguing about the cares of this world. But, as believers, we have the advantage of knowing that Jesus is coming soon. However, there is going to be lots of blood on our hands if we don't share the Gospel. (See Ezekiel 3:18-19.)

As a teen, I would have thanked God if I were handed something like a Chick tract, but no one ever witnessed to me. I had to hear it from a radio broadcast (thank God) the night I got saved.

Today, everyone is scared and looking for help, especially teens. The Lord has given us just what they need: Christian literature teens will read. Beloved, don't let their blood be on your hands.

Hopeless teens are everywhere hiding from reality by using drugs, sex and thinking of suicide. They block out the world with cell phones, texting or playing video games, because they dread their hopeless future. Only the Gospel can give them hope in the Lord Jesus Christ plus eternal life.

Beloved, are you still planting or passing along three tracts a day? If not, shame on you! Call us or visit www.chick.com to see our new material. After all, we are printing the best possible tracts we can, just for you. We can't reach them all without your help. We're counting on you and so is the Lord.

I love you,

Your brother in Christ,

IT'S SO MUCH EASIER, NOW THAT SO MANY PASTORS NO LONGER BELIEVE IN HELL! ...THANKS GUYS!

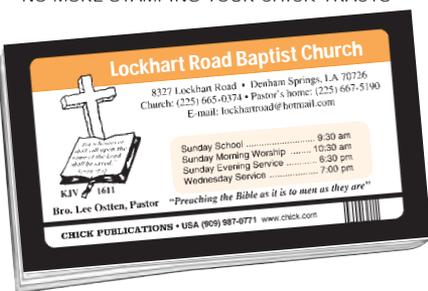

WOE BE UNTO THE PASTORS THAT DESTROY AND SCATTER THE SHEEP OF MY PASTURE! SAITH THE LORD.
